11 races bet , 11 races "won" for a very cozy 100% "win" rate

Total Cost for $2 win bets = $6 per race (top 3 to win) * 11 races = $66 plus $2 per dot * 3 total dot's = $6 for a total cost of: $72

$100.2

roi = (100 – 72) / 72 = +38.9% round up is almost 40% ...
so a $10 win bet would have returned 5 * 28 = $140
and a $20, $280 ...

20 is too steep for me but I might do 10 ... this year (2010) at Sax ...

to be determined ... depends on how many races of type there are to bet ...

Neophytes BEWARE!

It has been my experience in the past whenever I identify such "to good to be true 'sure thing' bets" and then actually bet them in reality as I am proposing here for next week at Sax that I usually loose badly BUT I am going to still bet. (the results given here are my hindsight look at sax for these race types and I didn't bet it as shown last year but had I done it ... oh, well there's always this year which is next week! ...)

... about 250 bucks is all I'm going to risk and if it works this year like last year I should make 40% of total bet = number or races bet * $amt per race * 0.4 ...

checking the Horsemen's Conditions 1 book at santaanita.com suggests there could be 18 races or so over the 12/26 – 31/10 week hence ... should make a clear profit of around a hundred bucks or so ...

tbd as when get closer to 12/26 will be looking for actual 2y.o. etc races to bet and will present their white sheets in the following file via the above mentioned aLogicalChoice link:

THECOZYSAX2010.PDF

PS

12/19/10

If this works I will be ... shocked and (really) looking forward to next year.
